

Insight 1

The West region generated the highest sales, indicating that it is the company's strongest-performing market. Management should continue investing in the region while exploring strategies to improve performance in lower-performing markets.

Insight 2

Technology products contributed significantly to both sales and profit. This suggests that expanding the technology product range and maintaining adequate inventory could improve overall business performance.

Insight 3

Monthly sales trends show fluctuations throughout the year, indicating seasonal demand. The company can use these trends to improve inventory planning, staffing and promotional campaigning during peak periods.